

Driving in Panama

Written by T. Rob Brown (aka Roberto Chocolate)

Tuesday, 03 August 2010 10:48 - Last Updated Tuesday, 03 August 2010 11:01

A question about driving in Panama. Roberto

Roberto, Is the drive from Panama City out to Santa Clara (the interior) an easy drive? I hear so much about Panama drivers. Thanks, Gretchen Driving in The City can be a little hairy - Panama City drivers are the worst. There are very few street signs. Panamanian drivers do not signal, they do not look sideways or obey any lane or traffic signals.

You must be assertive when driving (push your way into an intersection or force someone to let you in a lane) or you will never get anywhere.

I suggest having a drink or two before you set out - most of them have! LOL

Driving anywhere outside of Panama City is fairly straightforward. It is single four lane highway called the Interamericana or autopista (in excellent shape) all the way to Costa Rica, so - you can't get lost.

Remember, it is illegal to talk on a cell phone while driving, and do not drive non-stop in the left

Driving in Panama

Written by T. Rob Brown (aka Roberto Chocolate)

Tuesday, 03 August 2010 10:48 - Last Updated Tuesday, 03 August 2010 11:01

lane - (technically you use the left lane to pass) and obey speed signs - cops do have radar and they will pull you over. If you don't want to deal with a ticket, place a $5 or $10 bill in your passport. If that does not work, ry a $20 - never more than that.

NOTE: you must carry your passport with you at all time sin Panama, or you can be fined. You can use your own driver's license in Panama for 90 days, then you must get a Panamanian license. Roberto